

Doctoral Program in Psychology

More than money:
Father-child relationships
in early childhood

18 | 19 NOV

15:00 – 17:00

Prof. Dr. Natasha Cabrera

Department of Human Development and Quantitative Methodology, College of Education, University of Maryland

In this presentation I review the empirical evidence that links father involvement to children's developmental outcomes during early childhood. I take a family systems perspective that fathers' contribution to their children's development is over and above the contribution of mothers and present evidence that explores various mechanisms of influence. Finally, I situate my research on father involvement in a cultural and policy context that has important implications for programs and policies.

Powered by

cis _iscte

18_Zoom ID 851 1700 0485

19_Zoom ID 890 9514 7531